What are your local foods?

As you know, I live in Canada, in the  of Nova Scotia.

Nova Scotia is surrounded by the ocean, so in Nova Scotia we eat a lot of . Shellfish such as oysters, , clams and  are popular. Many people eat seafood chowder, a kind of soup with seafood,  and potatoes.

This province is famous for . In the past, lobster was a food for the poor,  and prisoners. Nowadays, however, lobster is an expensive  that is shipped all over the world.

Two famous fruits in Nova Scotia are  and apples. The first apples in Canada were grown in 1633 in Annapolis  in Nova Scotia. The valley is not named after apples, but after Queen Anne of France. Another town in Nova Scotia, Oxford, is known as the blueberry  of Canada.

Other traditional foods from Nova Scotia include  syrup and oatcakes. Some modern foods include moon mist  and the Halifax donair.

If you ever visit us in , hopefully you can try some of these foods! I'm sure you will enjoy them.
